What is Dementia?

Dementia is not a specific disease, rather an umbrella term that describes a wide range of symptoms associated with a decline in memory or other thinking skills severe enough to reduce a person’s ability to perform everyday activities. There are many conditions that can cause dementia. Alzheimer’s disease is the most common form of dementia accounting for 60 to 80 percent of cases.

Signs and Symptoms

- Memory loss that disrupts daily life
- Challenges in planning or solving problems
- Difficulty completing familiar tasks at home, work or at leisure
- Confusion with time or place
- Trouble understanding visual images and spatial relationships
- New problems with words in speaking and writing
- Misplacing things and losing the ability to retrace steps
- Decreased or poor judgment
- Withdrawal from work or social activities
- Changes in mood and personality

Stages of Dementia

Many diseases that cause dementia progressively get worse over time—this progression is described in stages from early or mild to late or severe dementia. Below are typical symptoms associated with each stage of dementia.

Early-Stage or Mild Dementia:
- Getting lost while driving
- Difficult managing finances
- Repeating questions
- Word finding problems
- Misplacing things

Middle-Stage or Moderate Dementia
- Increased confusion or memory loss
- Difficult learning new things or feeling challenged in new situations

Late-Stage or Severe Dementia:
- Difficult communicating with spoken words
- Complete dependency on caregiver for activities of daily living
- Increase sleeping
- Weight loss
- Difficult swallowing
- Lack of control of bowel and bladder
- Inability to recall names of familiar people

Please note that symptoms can vary from person to person based on a variety of factors including: disease type, other medical conditions, and personality and experiences.

Getting a Diagnosis, Memory Clinics, and Memory Screens

There are 85-90 different diseases that cause dementia. Each is very different, responds differently to medications and treatments, and may affect you differently. In addition, some are even reversible! That is why it is very important to find out what specific type of dementia you have. In addition, early and timely diagnosis of the cause is very important because it allows you and your family to plan, maximize care and treatments, and make decisions regarding your future and end of life wishes together. How do you get an accurate and timely diagnosis? When you have heart problems you go to a cardiologist—a specialist—so when you have issues with your brain you go to a specialist at a Memory Clinic. Memory Clinics are equipped with the specialist needed to help you figure out what specific type of dementia you have.

We have included a list of local Memory Clinics in this booklet. You can also find a list of Memory Clinics statewide through the Wisconsin Alzheimer’s Institute at https://wai.wisc.edu/. The Alzheimer’s Association also has a webpage of information dedicated to explaining the diagnosis process, questions to ask, and the tests and approach used for diagnosing Alzheimer’s Disease at https://www.alz.org/alzheimers-dementia/diagnosis.

If you have concerns about your memory but aren’t quite sure if it is a normal part of aging or something to investigate further, you can get a Memory Screen at the ADRC. Call the ADRC at 877-485-2372 to schedule an appointment. It is also, always a good idea to talk with your primary care physician any time you have memory concerns.
After the Diagnosis: Living Well with Dementia

- Partner with your doctor and learn more about what type of dementia you have, medications, ask questions, gather information, etc.
- Learn all you can about the disease and what to expect now and into your future
- Talk to others about how you are feeling (pastor, counselor, social worker, family, friends, etc.)
- Work with your family and/or an attorney to review or create a power of attorney for healthcare and finance
- Learn about options and resources available in the community
- Work with your family to create a plan of care for future care needs
- Exercise regularly
- Eat healthy
- Join a support group and/or a memory café
- Learn how you can continue to live safely in your home
- Learn about safe driving tips - visit www.alz.org/driving

Knowledge is power...know your options! For more ideas on living well with dementia, visit the following websites or pick up a copy of these workbooks at the Aging & Disability Resource Center.

Start thinking about and building your support network. Fill in each piece of the pie below with a resource, a friend, a family member, an agency or other support you can count on to help you through this journey.
Tips for Approaching/Caring for Someone with Alzheimer's or a Related Dementia:

- Never argue; logic and reason may not apply anymore.
- Use short and simple sentences, ask one question at a time, allow time for a response and encourage the person to take their time.
- Approach the person from the front, peripheral vision is often significantly impacted by dementia. Also get down to their level, kneel in front of them if they are in a chair. Towering over them may make them feel uneasy or in trouble.
- Watch your mood and body language as well as theirs—non-verbal messages communicate the most.
- Don’t take things personally. Remember it’s not the person giving you a hard time, it’s the disease and the person with the disease is having a hard time.
- Acknowledge their feelings. Person’s with dementia continue to feel loved or unloved, respected or un-respected, useful or useless, safe or in danger, valued or worthless. How do you want them to feel?
- Help the person feel in control. Allow them to continue making decisions and continue getting their input on decisions as long as possible.
- Accept them where they are. If they are experiencing a different reality, go with it, don’t try to re-orient them to your reality. It makes their reality more scary and confusing.
- Difficult behaviors are forms of communication. Put yourself in their shoes—what are they trying to communicate to you?

Things Not to Do:
- Order the person around or Tell the person what he/she can’t do
- Say “Remember...I told you yesterday..”
- Quiz them or ask questions that rely on good memory
- Talk faster and/or louder. They may hear just fine but take a longer time processing what you are saying.
- Look past the person when talking or talk around the person, instead talk to them.
10 WAYS TO LOVE YOUR BRAIN

START NOW. It’s never too late or too early to incorporate healthy habits.

HIT THE BOOKS
Formal education will help reduce risk of cognitive decline and dementia. Take a class at a local college, community center, or online.

BREAK A SWEAT
Engage in regular cardiovascular exercise that elevates heart rate and increases blood flow. Studies have found that physical activity reduces risk of cognitive decline.

STUMP YOURSELF
Challenge your mind. Build a piece of furniture. Play games of strategy like bridge.

BE YOUR FAN
Staying socially engaged may support brain health. Find ways to be part of your local community or share activities with friends and family.

FOLLOW YOUR HEART
Risk factors for cardiovascular disease and stroke — obesity, high blood pressure and diabetes — negatively impact your cognitive health.

HEADS UP!
Brain injury can raise risk of cognitive decline and dementia. Wear a seat belt and use a helmet when playing contact sports or riding a bike.

BUTT OUT
Smoking increases risk of cognitive decline. Quitting smoking can reduce risk to levels comparable to those who have not smoked.

FUEL UP RIGHT
Eat a balanced diet that is higher in vegetables and fruit to help reduce the risk of cognitive decline.

TAKE CARE OF YOUR MENTAL HEALTH
Some studies link depression with cognitive decline, so seek treatment if you have depression, anxiety or stress.

CATCH SOME ZZZ'S
Not getting enough sleep may result in problems with memory and thinking.

Care Planning
Create a care plan for emergencies and if a time comes when you are temporarily or permanently unable to care for your loved one. Think about who will care for your loved one when you can’t? What medical conditions does your loved one have and what medications are they on? Who is their primary care provider? What type of insurance do they have? What do you do to help your loved one and what types of activities do they like? A care plan can provide support to the caregiver and can act as a Plan B that will allow someone to step in, as seamlessly as possible, to care for your loved one when you cannot.

To learn more about care plans and get a fillable care plan document visit: https://www.cdc.gov/aging/publications/features/caregivers-month.html

For more information on planning for emergencies visit: https://www.alz.org/help-support/caregiving/safety/in-a-disaster

A care plan for someone with dementia may also include:

- What they are usually trying to communicate with certain behaviors
- Their daily routine

Caregiver Educational Class

Powerful Tools for Caregiving
Six-week workshop that teaches family caregivers how to take better care of themselves while caring for a loved one. Classes offered in a variety of settings throughout the year. Call the ADRC for the next workshop, 877-485-2372

Caregiver Programs

Alzheimer’s Family Caregiver Support Program (AFCSP): Funds for AFCSP are made available in each county to assist individuals to purchase services and goods related to caring for someone with Alzheimer’s disease or related dementia. Eligibility includes a diagnosis of Alzheimer’s disease or related dementia and an annual income of $48,000 or less. Contact the Aging & Disability Resource Center, 877-485-2372

National Family Caregiver Support Program (NFCSP): Limited funds available to provide short-term and temporary respite breaks for the family caregiver and supplemental services such as adaptive equipment, home medical supplies, etc.

For more information on caregiver classes and programs, contact the Aging & Disability Resource Center, 877-485-2372
Crisis

Crisis situations can lead to unnecessary hospital admissions or institutionalization. Immediate intervention, such as having a plan in place, may help avoid admission, while stabilizing measures can help prevent future crisis. The Aging & Disability Resource Center can help address your current situation and make plans for the future to prevent a crisis. See the Care Planning section as well. Individuals with dementia in crisis and their family caregivers needing emergency connection and help, outside of normal business hours can contact:

Elder Law Attorneys
Elder law attorneys specialize in providing legal services for older adults such as advance health care directives, powers of attorney, guardianship, living wills, trusts, planning for long-term care, Medicaid planning, residents rights in long-term care facilities, and estate, income and gift tax matters. To find one in your area, contact Wisconsin State Bar Lawyer Referral & Information Services, 800-362-9082

Guardianship
A guardianship of person or estate might be needed for someone who is incompetent and no longer able to make medical and/or financial decisions and does not have any other decision making directives in place, such as a Power of Attorney for Health care or Power of Attorney for Finances.

For more information, contact:
- WI Guardianship Support Center, 855-409-9410, www.gwaar.org
- Wisconsin Department of Health Services www.dhs.wisconsin.gov/clientrights/guardianship.htm
- For individuals that qualify financially, Adult Protective Services departments provide assistance with the guardianship process. Polk County Behavioral Health Department Adult Protective Services: 715-485-8400. Burnett County Health and Human Services-Adult Protection: 715-349-7600

Home Care
Long term care services provided in the home can include medical and non-medical services—home health care, supportive home care and personal care. Home health care (medical) includes skilled nursing care and therapy services. These services are often covered by Medicare on a short term basis. Personal care includes “hands-on” services (but not skilled services) including bathing, grooming and hygiene.
Supportive home care includes “hands-off” services like cleaning, laundry, cooking and meal preparation. Medicare does not pay for supportive home care or personal care (unless it is provided in conjunction with skilled services) and Medical Assistance will sometimes pay for personal care but will not pay for supportive home care or respite care. Below is a list of agencies that provide personal, supportive and respite home care—services that are often a huge help when caring for someone with dementia. For a complete list of medical in home services, costs and other long term care options contact the ADRC at 877-485-2372.

Hospice and Palliative Care Services

Hospice care focuses on comfort and dignity at the end of life; it involves care and support services that can be of great benefit to people in the final stages of Alzheimer’s and other dementias and their families. The primary purpose of hospice care is to manage pain and other symptoms during the last six months of life where treatments focus on comfort rather than curing the underlying disease. Hospice is usually covered by Medicare, Medicaid and other private insurances.

Palliative Care is available at any stage or age of a life-limiting illness. A patient does not need to have a terminal prognosis of six months or less to qualify, nor is it required that they stop seeking curative treatment. Palliative Care uses a team approach to improve quality of life by providing pain and symptom (including behaviors in a person living with dementia) management, facilitating communication, assisting with decision making and coordinating care and services available to support the patient within his or her community. Not typically covered by Medicare but sometimes covered by private insurance plans. Contact the agency to inquire about cost and payment options for palliative care services.

Both palliative care and hospice care services can be provided in the home or in a facility. For a list of hospice and palliative care agencies contact the ADRC at 877-485-2372.

Power of Attorney

What is a Power of Attorney for Health Care (POA-HC)?
A document that authorizes another person (called the “agent”, for example a daughter) to make health care decisions for the person executing the document (called the “principal,” for example a mother), consistent with the terms of the document and based on the wishes of the principal. It can include a statement of wishes regarding future care. It is essential that principals talk to their agents about their wishes. POA-HC forms are available at the Aging & Disability Resource Center or online at https://www.dhs.wisconsin.gov/forms/advdirectives/f00085.pdf. Additional information and the forms can also be found at www.gwaar.org or 1-855-409-9410.

How does my POA-HC become effective or activated?
For a POA-HC to become activated, the principal must be determined “incapacitated.” Incapacity is determined by two doctors or one doctor and a licensed psychologist and means an individual is “unable to receive and evaluate information effectively or to communicate decisions to such an extent that the individual lacks the capacity to manage his or her health care decisions.” The certification of incapacity must be attached to the POA-HC document. Section 155.01 (8) of Wisconsin Statutes.

If an individual remains able to make their own health care decisions, the agent’s authority to make health care decisions is not activated.

What is a Power of Attorney for Finance (POA-F)?
Power of Attorney for Finances is a document that you (the “principal”) complete and sign, naming another individual (the “agent”) to manage your finances. You determine the money you want the agent to have authority over, as well as the authority you want the agent to have. This document does not give your agent the power to make medical, long-term care or other health care decisions for you.

The agent’s authority takes effect immediately after you execute the document unless you expressly indicate otherwise. You retain the legal right to handle all of your finances as long as you are willing and able. Essentially, you and/or your agent have authority to make decisions about your finances.

If you do not complete a POA-F but later become incapacitated, there may not be anyone with legal authority to make necessary decisions and complete the necessary transactions for you (paying bills, selling real estate, closing bank accounts, filing tax returns, etc.).
Information and forms are available at www.gwaar.org or 1-855-409-9410.

Without a POA-HC or POA-F, it may be necessary for your family or others to ask the court to appoint a Guardian of the Person and Guardian of the Estate. This process can be costly, time-consuming, cumbersome and emotionally draining.

Research and Clinical Trials

Without clinical trials and research there can be no better treatments, no prevention and no cure for Alzheimer’s disease. Individuals with dementia, caregivers and healthy volunteers are needed to participate in clinical trials focused on Alzheimer’s and other dementias. Individuals interested in participating in research studies or interested in donating their brain (after death) for research purposes, can contact the following organizations.
